Messages and Papers of the Presidents

do I forget that some of you are my seniors, nor that many of you have more experience than I in the conduct of public affairs. Yet I trust that in view of the great responsibility resting upon me you will perceive no want of respect to yourselves in any undue earnestness I may seem to display.

Is it doubted, then, that the plan I propose, if adopted, would shorten the war, and thus lessen its expenditure of money and of blood? Is it doubted that it would restore the national authority and national prosperity and perpetuate both indefinitely? Is it doubted that we here—Congress and Executive—can secure its adoption? Will not the good people respond to a united and earnest appeal from us? Can we, can they, by any other means so certainly or so speedily secure these vital objects? We can succeed only by concert. It is not "Can any of us imagine better?" but "Can we all do better?" What whatsoever is possible, still the question recurs, "Can we do better?" The dogmas of the quiet past are inadequate to the stormy present. The occasion is piled high with difficulty, and we must rise with the occasion. As our case is new, so we must think anew and act anew. We must disenthrall ourselves, and then we shall save our country.

Fellow-citizens, we can not escape history. We of this Congress and this Administration will be remembered in spite of ourselves. No personal significance or insignificance can spare one or another of us. The fiery trial through which we pass will light us down in honor or dishonor to the latest generation. We say we are for the Union. The world will not forget that we say this. We know how to save the Union. The world knows we do know how to save it. We, even we here, hold the power and bear the responsibility. In giving freedom to the slave we assure freedom to the free—honorable alike in what we give and what we preserve. We shall nobly save or meanly lose the last best hope of earth. Other means may succeed; this could not fail. The way is plain, peaceful, generous, just—a way which is followed the world will forever applaud and God must forever bless.

ABRAHAM LINCOLN.

SPECIAL MESSAGES.

WASHINGTON, December 3, 1862.

To the Senate and House of Representatives:

On the 3d of November, 1861, a collision took place off the coast of Cuba between the United States steamship San Jacinto and the French brig Jules et Marie, resulting in serious damage to the latter. The obligation of this Government to make amends therefor could not be questioned if the injury resulted from any fault on the part of the San Jacinto.

The Carefully Compiled, Annotated and Indexed Utterances (Official) of Each and All the Presidents of the United States, Since the Foundation of the Government.

Inaugural addresses, annual messages, special messages, proclamations, executive orders, veto messages, etc., etc., secret diplomatic correspondence, State Department instructions, private military and technical reports; in fact, the complete story of the Government of the United States

An encyclopedic index covering every subject, and giving the essential facts in condensed form, raises the work to the highest value for the statesman, the student and the citizen. With the index it occupies TEN Octavo Volumes of About Seven Hundred Pages Each. The illustrations consist of a complete gallery of Portraits of Presidents, Government Buildings, copies of famous historic paintings, etc., which have never before been published in any book.

A Committee on Distribution has been appointed with Hon. Ainsworth R. Spofford, of the Congressional Library, as General Secretary, for the purpose of placing this great work before the American people at a nominal price—but a trifle more than cost.

On all requests for particulars, samples, etc., accompanied by a deposit of ONE DOLLAR, a set of the books will be laid aside and reserved pending further investigation. If you decide within ten days not to make application for the work, the amount will be refunded. All requests for further information will receive prompt attention in regular order, if addressed to
